RAIL STRIKE CALLED OFF BY HEADS OF THE UNIONS

Chicago Parley Of The Brotherhood Leaders Issues Stop Order

NO REASON GIVEN

Stone Fears Radicals Will Build On Wreck Of Present Unions

(Special To The China Press)

Chicago, Oct. 27.—The railroad strike is off. The leaders of the switchmen, trainmen, engineers, firemen and conductors adopted a joint resolution cancelling the strike order. The telegraphers also announced that they would cancel their order, these being the only unions that had formally authorised their members to strike.

(U. S. Navy Radio Through Reuter)

Cleveland, Oct. 27.—Mr. C. H. Stone, President of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, in a statement made public today, said that the brotherhoods were fighting for their very existence. KARL TO BE PUT ON BRITISH SHIP BOUND WHITHER?

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Oct. 27.—The Conference of Ambassadors has decided that Karl shall be placed on board the British gunboat anchored at Galatz to await the decision of the Powers with regard to his internment.

HUNGARIANS BALK

London, Oct. 27.—The question of Karl's fate has assumed a new aspect, according to Reuter's correspondent at Prague, in consequence of the Hungarian Regent and Premier having announced that the constitution does not allow them to surrender the ex-Emperor to the Allies or the Little Entente.

In the meantime, the Little Entente has sent an ultimatum, demanding his delivery within 48 hours, a guarantee for disarmament and full indemnity for the posts of mobilisation.

French opinion does not favor sending Karl to St. Helena in view of the memories associated with the Great Napoleon. The Hungarian Government is not extending equal consideration to Karl's principal supporters in the late adventure, who have been removed to Budapest for trial.

(U. S. Navy Radio through Reuter)

Paris, Oct. 27.—Official circles said that Allied policy relating to Karl has decided that he must be placed where he will not disturb the peace of Europe again.

TO BE SURRENDERED

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Oct. 27.—The Temps learns that in order to satisfy the Allies the Hungarian Government will hand over the ex-Emperor Karl to the Allied representatives.

Says Great Britain Might "Supervise" P. C. In Event Of Clash

THAT Great Britain might have to "supervise the Panama Canal" in the event of an American-Japanese war is the extraordinary possibility foreshadowed by Sir William Bull, M. Why Did Harding Do It? Southern Senators Lament

(Special To The China Press)

Washington, Oct. 27.—Senator Harrison of Mississippi in a formal statement here today, said that President Harding's utterance on the negro question was unfortunate and mischievous.

Senator Watson of Georgia said he lamented as it was a great pity a northern man holding the highest office upon earth should go "down south" and place fatal germs in the mind of the black race.

CHRISTMAS MAIL NOTICE ISSUED BY POST OFFICE

Christmas mail to go to the United States should be posted to go on the Empress of Japan, sailing November 20, the Wenatchee, sailing November 22, or the Hoosier State, sailing November 22, if delivery in time for the holidays is to be insured.

The reminder is given that the heaviest burden of mails in the United States is reached in the period just before the holidays and by reason of this delays in delivery are more or less inevitable unless plenty of time is given by senders. The steamer Empress of Japan is to sail on November 20 and will arrive at Vancouver on December 8. The Wenatchee, sailing on November 22, will arrive at Seattle on December 9, and the Hoosier State, sailing on November 22, is to arrive at San Francisco on December 11.

For points in the western states Christmas mail can be forwarded from Shanghai as late as November 30 when the Empire State leaves for San Francisco, arriving there on December 19.

Following the arrival of the Empress of Asia last night with mail from America the next incoming mail is due here on the Wenatchee from Seattle, due to arrive next Tuesday. The steamers Siberia Maru and the Monteagle both are due in with mail next Wednesday.

The next outbound mail for America will be dispatched on the Taiyo Maru sailing next Wednesday.

He says that th views exchanged indicate an earnest desire to accomplish results and to display a spirit of co-operation.

He denies that questions of racial equality will be discussed and also any intention to invite official or unofficial German representatives to the Conference.

CHINESE ARRIVE

(U. S. Navy Radio through Reutre)

San Francisco, Oct. 27.—Nearly a hundred experts, councillors and secretaries to the Chinese delegation to the Washington Conference arrived today on board the Hawkeye State and started to Washington immediately. Mr. Liang, the former Foreign Minister, declined to give an official statement but expressed the hope that the Shantung question would be settled to the satisfaction of the rightful owners.

GOODBYES FOR BRIAND

(U. S. Navy Radio Through Reuter)

Paris, Oct. 27.—The departure of the Premier, M. Briand, for the United States is fixed for next Saturday, The Premier, and the members of the delegation will embark in the afternoon on the mail-boat, Lafayette, at Havre. The Brest torpedo boat flotilla will salute the Premier as the Lafayette passes Brest.

The President and Mme Millerand gave a luncheon in honor of the French delegation today at which were present the Premier, M. Briand, M. Albert Sarraut, Minister of the Colonies, M. Viviani, former Premier, General Buat, Chief of the General Staff of the Army, Admiral de Bon, Chief of the General Staff of the Navy, M. Philippe Berthelot, Secretary-General of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, M. Massigli, Secretary of the Conference of Ambassadors, M. Kamerer, Assistant Director of the Foreign Office, and other prominent personages.

FRANCE WANTS PEACE

Paris, Oct. 27.—In the Chamber of Deputies today M. Briand declared that France was going to the Washington Conference in the interests of world peace. The French delegates would have to explain their concern for France's security and, however desirous of reducing armaments and lightening the nation's burdens, France must not only safeguard her own existence but uphold the traditions of justice and right on which the fate of all humanity depended.

He explained that France had trusted the guarantees, offered by the Allies at the Peace Conference instead of extensive occupation of the Rhine but now France had neither.

HARDING HAS HOPES

(Reuter's Service)

Birmingham, Alabama, Oct. 27.—President Harding in a speech here today said that he wanted to see more fraternal spirit among the nations and wholeheartedly hoped that the day had come when the people of the United States could look on the faces of the people of Europe, Asia, Africa and South America and ask themselves why make war and why seek what belonged to others. He most firmly believed that, in this consciousness, they were going to accomplish a new step forward in the world.

President Harding said that when he suggested the possibility of economic equality of the races he meant precisely the same as if he spoke of equality of economic opportunity between members of the same race, equally proportioned to the honest capacities and deserts of the individual.

Men of both races might well stand uncompromisingly against every suggestion of social equality, indeed it would be helpful to have the word equality eliminated from this consideration and to have it accepted by both sides that this is not a question of social equality but a question of recognising the fundamentally eternal and inescapable differences.

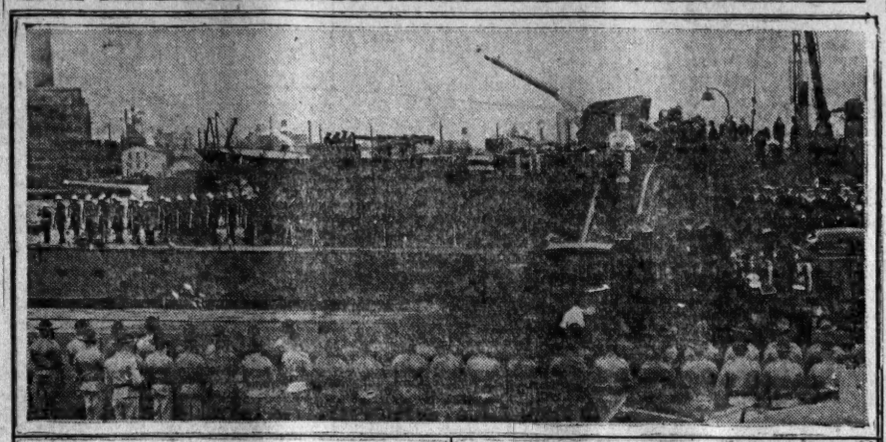
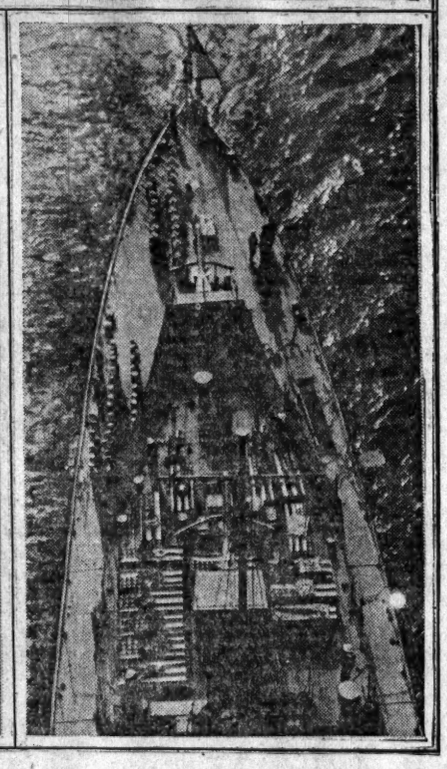
British Cruiser Takes Victims Of R-38 Disaster Home To Their Last Resting Place





INTERNATIONAL

HER flags flying half mast and escorted by a fleet of American destroyers and airplanes, the British light cruiser Dauntless arrived at the New York Navy Yard bearing the bodies of the fifteen American naval heroes who were plunged to death in the collapse of the dirigible R-38 over the River Humber, Aug. 24.

Immediately after her arrival at the Navy Yard the fifteen caskets of the American naval airmen who gave their lives for the furtherance of air navigation, were taken from the vessel and carried to the Naval Hospital.

As the bodies were brought ashore in the Brooklyn, N. Y. Navy Yard they were received by an honor guard of marines, as shown in the above photograph. The photograph on the right shows the Dauntless passing under the Brooklyn Bridge, with the flag-draped coffins of the victims on deck.

CHINESE MUSTER TO MAKE FIGHT ON HIGHER RENTS

Chinese householders in the Settlements are rapidly amalgamating their district organisations into a general federation designed to make a determined fight against increased rentals.

Three weeks ago, it is declared, there were eight newly formed "tenants' unions" which had sprung into being owing to announcement that rents in the various districts they represent were shortly to be raised. Today there are 23 local organisations and the formation of the confederated body is well under way. Legal representatives are being engaged and it is proposed to lay the matter of rent raises in all its length before the general public and to draw it to the attention of the various commercial organisations, Chinese and foreign, the Consular Body, the municipalities and the provincial and government authorities.

It is declared by representatives of the tenants that rentals

Alas! Red Chair's Place Is Usurped By Motor Car

By Elsie McCormick

Shanghai, as you must have noticed if you've been outdoors much lately, has suddenly broken out in weddings like a Chinese baby having its annual session with prickly heat. In fact, you can hardly go down town without having your ricsha halted by half a dozen processions and the Chinese equivalent to Lohengrin's Pre-Alimony March is stepping all over the upper atmosphere.

We have angled considerably for an explanation of this sudden rush into the red chair, but all we have managed to land thus far is that "this moon b'long Number One lucky time catchee one piece wife." Thus the nuptial flutes playing the Chinese for "Here Comes the Bride," or the nuptial brass band, costumed in purple with gold epaulets and red cockades, and rendering "Over There" or "Has Anybody Here Seen Kelly?" have taken auricular precedence for the time being over the anthems of the wheelbarrow coolie and his brethern of the Strut Repairers' Guild.

Weddings in China—at least in the treaty ports—have reached that transitional stage symbolised by a Chinese girl in native costume combined with French high heels and furs, or a Taoist priest jolting around Shanghai in a 1921 limousine. For instance, we stopped yesterday before a shop-front dressed up like a whole ranch of chameleons, or a school of little rainbows sent out to play.

SOME COSTUME THIS!

In a few moments appeared, not the traditional red chair, but a carriage with scarlet draped windows and out of it stepped a little lady wearing a pink satin jacket and trousers, the traditional wedding head dress heavy with dangles, a long pink net veil and heavy white cotton gloves of the kind that are kept in stock by American undertaking establishments to be loaned out to pall-bearers.

The changing age in China is represented by the variety in wedding-processions, as much as by the beginning of the factory system or the introduction of the motor-truck. Even in Shanghai, however, the old fashion is still very much in evidence, including the red-jacketed beggar-children who act as bearers, the lanterns marked with the names of the contracting parties, a banner inscribed with the sentiment, "The phoenixes are singing harmoniously," the wedding-chair itself, inlaid with gilt and tiny mirrors, and sometimes a piece of pork carried ahead of the entourage to attract the attention of greedy spirits that might otherwise try to upset the nuptial bandwagon. It was formerly the custom to bear tablets enumerating the literary degrees held by the families involved, but in Fukien at least the ancestral degrees are giving place to the bride's graduation certificate. Chinese girls completing even primary school usually insist on a diploma, just so that it can be borne in the wedding-procession ahead of the red chair.

WIRES TIMES TO SPREAD NEWS THAT SOUTH AIDS NO JAPAN-FETTERED CLIQUE

What Can China Get From Washington Conference With Japan Pulling The Strings, He Reports As Attitude Of South—Vital That The World Understand Position Of 130,000,000 People

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Hongkong, October 28.—The evening papers publish the following message which Lord Northcliffe has cabled to the Times:

"In the absence of President Sun Yat-sen, I interviewed Dr. Wu Ting-fang and other officials of the Republican Government of South China.

"This Government claims that it represents the views of more than 130,000,000 Chinese in the provinces of Yunnan, Kueichow, Kwangsi, Kwangtung and Szechuen and that it is not under the sway of Japanese politicians.

Claim They Are Fettered

"Pending recognition of its national status by the World Powers, Dr. Sun Yat-sen's Government declines to accede to the request of the Peking Government to send one delegate—Dr. C. C. Wu—to the Washington Conference because the other three Chinese delegates are the fettered nominees of a recognised pro-Japanese clique, which forms the Peking Administration.

"They claim that these delegates from North China may only act in conformity with instructions from Peking, which would be dictated by Tokio.

Vital To Register Attitude

"Competent foreign authorities agree that this contention is not baseless, whatever may be said of the extent of authority of Dr. Sun Yat-sen's Government and I consider that it is of vital importance to register this attitude of a large section of the Chinese people and to make it known that the influence of Japan is considered to be a sufficient power to divert China as a nation from any straight-forward attempt to state her case at the Washington Conference."

SEE U. S.—JAPAN WAR

(U. S. Navy Radio through Reuter)

London, Oct. 27.—The Times, commenting on Lord Northcliffe's Japanese interview, said that, if Japan considers peace the only object consistent with her immediate estimate for her welfare, then the Washington Conference will offer an unequalled opportunity in securing the co-operation of other powers.

It adds that the British are Japan's allies but British opinion is divided on the renewing of the Alliance. Some views expressed in Japan indicate that a certain section of Japanese opinion places little reliance on the Alliance.

The Times says it does not believe these expressions any more than it believes that the militarist designs, put forward by some Japanese, correctly represent Japan. The Times said that insurance was written today at odds of nineteen to one that there would be War between Japan and United States by January 1, 1923.

Russian Ship Threatened To Sink The Ralph Moller Is Captain's Report Here

The story of the steamer Ralph Moller, which was fired on and driven into the Japanese port of Muroran by the Russian gunboat Batarea on October 7 was brought in detail to Shanghai yesterday when the British ship came into port here.

The Batarea, which was flying the Russian Imperial ensign, is thought to have attempted to stop the Ralph Moller because she believed the latter was carrying arms and munitions to Kamchatka. With this in mind the master of the Moller, Captain R. A. Young, immediately he got into the port of Muroran, reported to the authorities and requested that his ship be searched to prove that there were no arms aboard her. He went also to the British Consular officials at Hakodate and turned in a report. The Japanese Customs officials inspected the vessel and gave her a clean report.

NAIVE RUSSIAN EXCUSE

A ludicrous explanation of the incident was furnished the Japanese papers at Muroran from Russian sources.

The shot was fired, this explanation naively deposes, because the Batarea thought the other ship was in distress and she wished to stop her in order to render assistance.

The Ralph Moller, owned by Moller & Co., was chartered by Mr. L. Fred Patstone, of the China Commercial Development Company, 10 Kiukiang Road, for the purpose of a trading expedition to Petropavlosk, Kamchatka, and sailed from Shanghai with passengers, 1,000 tons of coal and a further cargo of piece goods and general merchandise on September 27. She called at Muroran on October 4 to take on more coal and water and complete her cargo and left that port on October 7.

CAPTAIN MAKES REPORT

What happened thereafter is graphically set forth in Captain Young's official report, which is as follows:

Left Shanghai 27-9-21, with general cargo and 13 Russian adult passengers (6 men, 3 women, 4 children); arrived Muroran a.m. 4-10-21. Completed with bankers and fresh water, on the 7th at 11:30 a.m. proceeded out of harbor, pilot directing.

At 11:15 a.m. stopped and discharged pilot. At 11:54 a.m. proceeded full speed ahead. At 11:58 a.m. passed Daikohu light house distance 2 1-2 cables, then course to masters orders until 12:40 p.m. when Chikiu Misika light house bore NNE distant 2 miles; set course S. 7 E. true and streamed log and reduced speed.

At 12:45 altered course towards the land.

GUNBOAT THREATENS

At 12:58 rung "Slow ahead" and at 1:05 turned vessel round with a view to returning to Muroran, on account of the suspicious movements of the Russian gunboat, who had been laying at Muroran and who had followed closely on the movements of the Ralph Moller.

While turning the s.s. Ralph Moller the Batarea also altered course in such a manner as to intercept the Ralph Moller return track to Muroran.

At 1:14 she signalled by International Code "M.N." (Stop immediately) and shortly after fired across our bows.

Our answering pennant was there at the dip, as no time had been given us to decade the signal.

Engines were put astern and three blasts of the whistle indicated same. Batarea then hoisted signal "J. Z. C." ("alter course") and on the gunboat closing within speaking distance, master Ralph Moller questioned through megaphone. Why have you stopped my ship? "Reply received from officer on bridge of Batarea, and who was dressed in khaki. "I have orders." This is good English. Master Ralph

Moller replied "This is a British ship. I am in Japanese territorial water, and I do not recognise your authority."

The same officer of Batarea sung out through megaphone "Steer S. E." Master Ralph Moller replied "I will not, and intend to remain in Japanese territorial waters."

The same officer replied "Then you will sink."

Batarea meanwhile hoisted "A. D. R." ("Compass signal S.E."). Ralph Moller hoisted signal in reply, per master orders "D" (indicating negative).

At 1:28 p.m. the Ralph Moller proceeded full speed ahead towards Muroran, the Batarea following, plainly indicating by her movements that she intended overtaking the Ralph Moller and taking up position between her and the land.

At about 1:40 p.m. the Batarea altered course and when lost to the view of the Ralph Moller, appeared to be steering in a S. E. direction.

The Ralph Moller arrived at anchorage at Muroran Harbor at 2:55 p.m. and reported these events to the harbor police authorities, and the same night the master of the s.s. Ralph Moller proceeded to Hakodate to report to the British Consulate.

Two of the Russian passengers state that they saw the fall of the shot from the Batarea and two members of the ship's crew state having seen the flash: I myself heard the report.

The officer who give the various communications from the bridge of the Batarea gave no reason for stopping or deviating the Ralph Moller from her course.

The course S. E. given was a course evidently intended for Hakodate, and would have caused the ship to be taken directly out of Japanese territorial waters.

Records from the police station at Muroran indicate that Batarea entered Muroran to complete with coal and water, and also to effect temporary repairs, upon the completion of which she intended proceeding to Hakodate.

The police also state that one officer from the Batarea supposed to be the commanding officer, had previously left Muroran for Hakodate to arrange permanent ship repairs at the latter port.

The report from the light-house keeper at Chikiu Misika to the police states having observed two ships maneuvering but did not observe flash from gun or hear report of same.

When the Batarea fired, a vertical sextant angle of the lighthouse was taken from the Ralph Moller and the distance was found to be 2.5 miles.

In my estimation the speed of the Batarea was about 9 knots.

The majority of the crew of the Batarea were dressed in khaki.

From the time of her first signal the Batarea kept her guns trained continuously on the Ralph Moller.

She flew the Russian Government Imperial ensign—namely a white flag with a blue St. Andrew's cross and had the appearance of an old type of gunboat. It is also reported that she has, during the last few months, been stationed at Vladivostok.

Signed ROBT. A. YOUNG,

Krassin Protests Shipping Denekin Men Across Russia

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 27.—M. Krassin has sent a Note, protesting against the British action in shipping 600 Denikin refugees from Mesopotamia to Vladivostok, which is justified by the refusal of the Soviet to grant an amnesty if the refugees were repatriated to Soviet Russia.

M. Krassin explains that, although the Soviet was unable to take cognisance of the demand of a foreign Government for an amnesty as it was intervention in Russia's internal affairs, the Soviet proposed a repatriation scheme, involving an amnesty, which Britain ignored. He asks for an assurance that the refugees have not been sent to Vladivostok for the purpose of fighting the Soviet.

Chinese Muster To Make Fight On Higher Rents

have already increased 100 percent during the past three years and that the increase which has been notified by the majority of landlords to take effect on November 1 will give a 30-percent boost to the present tariff. As against this wages have gone up only from 15 to 25 percent.

Three years ago, they point out, two-story shops and dwellings of the sort rented by the great bulk of the Chinese population here could be had at a rate of $8. Some time ago this rate was lifted to $11 and last Spring it was made $15. The present proposal of the big landlords is to increase the figure by $5.

Delegations from the various street tenants' bodies have called on the landlords, they declare, asking them to defer the increase and emphasising their utter inability to meet it in the event that it is imposed on the first of the coming month. Their pleas, they say, have fallen on deaf ears. They cannot pay the higher scale of rent and they cannot move—the only alternative offered them.

It has been proposed by several of the organisations that their respective members refuse to pay the increase demanded for the coming month and that all the rental money be turned over to lawyers who will be asked to push the case against the landlords.

Meetings attended by several hundred householders are being held nearly every day and the situation is being discussed at considerable length in the Chinese press.

Mr. Stewart urged that the bill should be introduced soon as the British in Japan were very anxious. Replying to a further question, Mr Harmsworth said that the bill would apply generally to all countries.

PEKING DELEGATES EXPLAIN REASONS FOR MISSION HERE

Wish To Put Sentiments Of Chinese People Before Pacific Conference

Nearly a score of representatives of the Peking Citizens' Diplomatic Union of Associated Bodies have arrived here during the week. At an informal gathering yesterday afternoon at the Oriental Hotel, the leading members of the delegation explained the objects of the Peking Citizens' Organisation. Representatives of the local Chinese press and of some local organisations were present.

The Union's main object is to put the public opinion of the Chinese people before the Washington Conference in order to make a more impressive appeal to the Powers, especially the United States, to secure justice for China in the Pacific questions with special reference to the Shantung issue. To achieve this object the Union does not wish to act independently but rather in complete harmony and co-operation with the associated bodies of China, especially those of Shanghai.

Various suggestions were offered at the meeting, the general gist being that the purpose of the Peoples' National Diplomatic Convention would be best served by dealing with a few main issues in which China's claims are too apparent to be ignored, and appealing to foreign well-wishers of China for moral support.

Among the resolutions passed at the meeting were that the Peking Delegation publish a declaration explaining to the Shanghai public the aims of the Union and the scope of its activities, and that a meeting of the Shanghai associated bodies be held at an early date to be followed by telegraphic invitations to the provinces requesting the sending of representative delegates.

couple, from blackwood tables to brass cooking utensils, all being carried by members of the Beggars' Guild. At many Chinese weddings, the gifts from friends are also on display at the groom's home, though foreign guests have noted that these are usually tied down.

The groom who mixes his "I do's" and "I will's," drops the ring, bumps heads with the best man when he tries to look for it, and walks up the aisle out of step with the bride, while his shoes creak louder than the melody of Mr. Mendelssohn has many reasons for envying a bridegroom in China.

Instead of standing like a stuffed dummy and wondering if the congregation can notice how his black coat wrinkles across the shoulders, the Chinese groom, with no long ceremonial ordeal to face, mingles cheerfully with his guests and lets the bride do all the worrying.

In some districts, however, the bride is called for by the groom himself. He arrives at dawn and sends original poetry to his intended at intervals during the day until she is finally induced to depart. If a Western bride kept her fiance waiting for the same length of time, she would probably find him married to the maid of honor and well-started on the honeymoon.

SLEEPING IT OFF

Usually, however, a friend of the groom calls with a formal letter requesting the bride to depart, which she doesn't do until he has been kept waiting the length of time required for good form. At a recent Chinese wedding in Shanghai, the departure of the bride was delayed a few hours longer than usual because a foreign caller, who was feeling rather felicitous himself, had fallen asleep in the bridal chair and his hosts were too polite to waken him.

At the home of the groom, the only ceremony consists of bowing before the ancestral tablets and drinking wine or eating rice together. Usually the bride is not present at the feast which follows but even if she does attend, she is masked behind dark glasses and receives nothing to eat. Before the close of her wedding day, her husband's friends and relatives gather around, criticise her face, dress, and manner, and try if possible to upset her equilibrium. In view of these touching little observances, it is not exactly surprising that so few Chinese widows remarry.

WIRES HIS BILL

In Japan, the wine-drinking ceremony usually takes place in a Shinto temple, where to the tune of weird scrapings and moanings on the part of the temple orchestra, the bride and groom drink from the same bowl of wine. A white headdress shaped like a toy boat made of folded paper and a black crepe kimono figured with the happiness symbols of plum, pine, and bamboo make up her wedding costume. An indispensible part of a modern Japanese ceremony is the reading of stacks of congratulatory telegrams. Occasionally a resourceful creditor slips a little in among the messages, which the go-between usually reads aloud before gathering its import.

The woman of the Far East seems to have the worst of it on her wedding-day, but then more than one Chinese wife has succeeded later in knocking her better half for a row of curved-roofed pagodas.

Place Yourself in the Position of a Prospective Home Buyer

Well painted houses bring as high as 30% more sale price than those painted with cheap, inferior color. The use of good paint may alone close a deal.

If you were purchasing a piece of property would you not examine carefully the quality of the painting? An attractive exterior—substantil, weather-proof roof—metal gutters and drains smooth—floors water and heat-proof—woodwork and walls harmonious?

Now what is the condition of your own home? Can you answer these questions as you would want them answered if you were buying a home? If not, your property is depreciating in value and must be quickly refinished with the use of high grade paint.

Mrs. Singer Wins Divorce In First Suit Tried Here

Mrs. Lena Singer, first British subject to bring a divorce action in China, was given her decree yesterday by Judge Skinner Turner in the British Supreme Court. Mrs. Singer's petition, alleging cruelty and infidelity, was the first to come to a hearing under the recently extended Divorce Act. She wins as well as the decree the custody of her three children.

In delivering judgment Judge Skinner Turner held that the allegation against the intervenor, Mrs. Amelia Archer, must fail for lack of proof and because of the "inherent improbability of the story." Mrs. Archer was given a judgment for costs against Mrs. Singer and William J. Singer, the respondent. Mrs. Singer was also given an order for costs upon her former husband.

The other charges of infidelity were sustained by the Court.

The Court room was crowded when Judge Skinner Turner gave his decision. Mrs. Singer was accompanied by several friends, and Mrs. Archer sat with her husband. Mr. Singer, who acted as his own attorney in the proceedings, sat alone in the counsels' benches.

The Judge, before giving his opinion, said that he wished to emphasise two important points in connection with the first case of its kind to be heard before the British Court.

First, he said, the parties who seek the aid of the British Court in matters of this kind, must prove their domicile in China, and second, the Court would demand the same degree of careful, complete evidence that the highest courts in England demand.

COURT REVIEWS TESTIMONY

The Court then reviewed the case, briefly pointing out that Mr. Singer was 34 and Mrs. Singer was a girl of 19 at the time of their marriage in Harbin and that they now had three children.

The wife alleges, he said, that their matrimonial differences commenced on the night of their marriage and continued until 1918, when she determined that she would have nothing more to do with him, a resolution that she kept to the letter.

The husband denies each and every one of the charges made against him and the Court must therefore see where the parties are not in dispute. When a woman who has been married for five years, and after a separation from her husband has made up her mind that she will not live with him any longer at a time when she has no means of support and knows it is impossible for her to get a divorce—because the British Court had not been granted jurisdiction in divorce cases at that time—there must have been in her mind some grounds for her feeling so.

MANY QUARRELS SHOWN

The constant changes of employment of the defendant had undoubtedly been aggravated by drink. By his own admission in a letter to his wife he did drink to excess.

It is agreed that the day after the marriage Mrs. Singer was not well enough to travel. Mrs. Singer gives the reason; Mr. Singer gives no reason and admits that he did leave her for most of the day.

It is agreed that in another instance there was a quarrel which resulted in some woman complaining to a doctor and showing injuries. Mrs. Singer says she was the woman and her testimony is corroborated by the doctor. Mr. Singer says it was Mrs. Singer's sister. The doctor knows who the woman was and the evidence is clear that Mr. Singer was guilty of cruelty on that occasion.

Facts proved by independent evidence show that in June, 1916, Mrs. Singer was kicked downstairs at a time she was not well, and that in December, 1920, when Mrs. Singer was seriously ill in the hospital her husband, by some action, gravely aggravated her condition.

CRUELTY CHARGES UPHELD

From the surrounding circumstances the charges of cruelty which Mrs. Singer had made were amply proved.

In the adultery charges four separate instances were alleged against Mr. Singer which the Court must consider, one in Hongkong, and three in Shanghai. The evidence was that Mr. Singer was living with a Japanese woman in Hongkong and that his attorney found a Japanese woman in Mr. Singer's home there. In addition there was a very curious remark made by Mr. Singer while he was cross-examining in his own behalf. He remarked to his wife on the witness stand that after she had refused to live with him he did not see why she should be concerned about his actions; that he was entitled to do anything he liked.

That remark does not point to innocence. The only inference is that Mr. Singer was living with a Japanese woman in Hongkong.

HOLDS INFIDELITY PROVED

Concerning the allegations of infidelity with a Japanese amah and Chinese servant in Shanghai the conclusion was irresistible that the acts took place. When charged with the acts by Mrs. Singer, Mr. Singer did not meet the accusations as an innocent man would have with an indignant denial but said in effect it was his own affair. Those charges were amply proved.

And now to the charge in which Mrs. Archer is involved. The Court had found it extremely hard to act on the astounding story. Mrs. Archer's husband was away on war service; her little child had just died, and she was in the house as the guest of the Singers. Mrs. Singer declares that she found the bed Mrs. Archer was occupying empty and that she found Mrs. Archer with her husband.

It was a most astounding story. There was no corroboration of the story. There was no suggestion of any previous familiarity, no hint of any reason. Mrs. Singer took no steps to tell anyone, but continued to live with Mr. Singer. She says she couldn't leave at that time as she had no place to go and her children to take care of.

GETS CUSTODY OF CHILDREN

In view of the inherent improbability of the story the Court held that the petitioner has failed to prove the charge against Mrs. Archer. There is ample proof in the other cruelty and adultery charges, however, to grant Mrs. Singer a divorce.

Mr. Tycho Wing, for Mrs. Singer, asked the Court concerning the children, and Judge Skinner Turner ordered that Mrs. Singer should have their custody.

Mr. R. F. C. Master, for the Intervenor, asked that the costs of his client be assessed against Mr. Singer and Mrs. Singer as the British law held that a successful intervenor should not have to pay costs to clear her own character. Mr. Wing agreed and the Court so ordered.

YEN GIVES LIE DIRECT TO THE JAPANESE NOTE

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, Oct. 25.—The Chinese reply to the Japanese memorandum of October 19 has been drafted, it is learned through well informed sources, and is divided into three parts. Dr. Yen has also declared that Japanese allegations to the effect that China agreed to enter into negotiations on Shantung are absolutely groundless. He admits talking informally to Mr. Obata on the subject but nothing to be taken as the basis for direct negotiations was ever given to the Japanese Government.

In the Chinese reply which will be handed to the Japanese Government within the next few days, the first division of the note deals with this question of a confidential agreement between the two countries in regard to the settlement of the Shantung question. The Chinese Government states that it is unable to recognise the eight principles communicated by Mr. Yu of the Lichun Corporation to the Japanese Government as an important document in the negotiations, as this Mr. Yu was not an authorised representative of the Peking Government.

In the second place it is contended that as China was an ally in the Great War, Japan had no more right to advance a claim to territory of Germany in reality belonging to China, than had the United States to lay claim to territory in France or Belgium which American troops had captured from the Germans. The note points out that on the contrary the United States Government has never demanded from France or Belgium any indemnity for its services in the recovery of their land.

The third part of the note is devoted to a re-affirmation of the Chinese statements in the first reply to Japan to the effect that the Japanese proposals fall far short of those expected by the Chinese people. It states that Japan intends to make a nominal return of the Shantung Province while retaining herself all valuable rights and privileges.

These are the main subjects of the reply as it is at present drafted. Chinese ministers abroad have been telegraphed for an expression of their views on the whole subject and whether this note as at present drafted will be actually delivered to Mr. Obata, the Japanese Minister has not yet been decided.

Students Of Forty Countries Meet In Peking Next Spring

At the urgent invitation of the Christian student movements of China the World's Student Christian Federation is arranging to hold its Eleventh Conference in Peking, April 4th to 9th, 1922. Previous Conferences of this Federation have been held in Sweden, the United States, Germany, France, Denmark, Holland, Japan, England and Turkey. The coming Conference will be the first held in China since the organisation of the Federation in 1895, and the second held in the Far East.

The World's Student Christian Federation unites the students of the world around the highest ideals of thought and action. It is the only broadly international organisation which was able to continue its service to all alike throughout the Great War. Its membership is composed of national groups of Christian students. There are two such groups in China, the Young Men's Christian Association organised in 184 schools and colleges, and the Young Women's Christian Association organised in 90 schools and colleges. Both of these National Student Movements are members of the World's Student Christian Federation. The Chinese representatives on the General Committee of the Federation are: Dr. C. T. Wang, Mr. C. C. Nieh, Miss Yu Jung Fan and Miss Grace Yang.

MAKING PREPARTIONS

Preparations for the Conference have been entrusted to a joint Committee appointed by the National Committees of the Young Men's Christian Association and the Young Women's Christian Association. This Committee is being appointed from among the most interested men and women throughout the whole country, eight members of it, resident in Shanghai, constitute the Executive Committee. These are: Chairman, Dr. T. H. Lee; Vice-Chairman, Dr. Mary Stone; Secretary, The Rev. K. T. Chung; Treasurer, Dr. C. T. Wang; Mr. T. C. Tu, President of the Shanghai College Y. M. C. A.; Mrs. T. C. Chu, Miss Phoebe Hoh and Miss Chang Hsao-mei of the Bridgman School Y. W. C. A.

At this time when China's internal chaos so truly mirrors the chaotic condition of the entire world, it is particularly fitting to welcome to this land members of an organisation which pre-eminently represents international harmony and goodwill. The Conference to be held in Peking next spring will voice the conviction of the students of the world that the hope of the future lies not in force, which leads to conflict, but in co-operation which leads to deeper understanding and mutual benefit.

for Infants and Children.

The Effects of Opiates.

THAT INFANTS are peculiarly susceptible to opium and its various preparations, all of which are narcotic, is well known. Even in the smallest doses, if continued, these opiates cause changes in the functions and growth of the cells, which are likely to become permanent, causing imbecility, mental perversion, a craving for alcohol or narcotics in later life. Nervous diseases, such as intractable nervous dyspepsia and lack of staying power, are a result of dosing with opiates or narcotics to keep children quiet in their infancy. The rule among physicians is that children should never receive opiates in the smallest doses for more than a day at a time, and only then if unavoidable.

The administration of Anodynes, Drops, Cordials, Soothing Syrups and other narcotics to children by any but a physician cannot be too strongly decried, and the druggist should not be a party to it. Children who are ill need the attention of a physician, and it is nothing less than a crime to dose them wilfully with narcotics. Castoria contains no narcotics if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

Physicians Recommend Castoria.

"Your preparation known as Castoria I have used for years in children's complaints and have found nothing better."
JOHN J. LAFFA, M. D.,
Cleveland, Ohio.

"For several years I recommended your Castoria and shall always continue to do so, as it has invariably produced beneficial results."
EDWIN F. PARDEE, M. D., New York City.

"Your Castoria is a meritorious household remedy. It is purely vegetable and acts as a mild cathartic. Above all it does no harm, which is more than can be said of the great majority of children's remedies."
VICTOR H. COFFMAN, M. D., Omaha, Neb.

"I have prescribed your Castoria in many cases and have always found it an efficient and speedy remedy."
A. F. PARLER, M. D., St. Louis, Mo.

"I have used your Castoria in my own household with good results, and have advised several patients to use it for its mild, laxative effect and freedom from harm."
EDWARD PARRISH, M. D.,
Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Your Castoria holds the esteem of the medical profession in a manner held by no other proprietary preparation. It is a sure and reliable medicine for infants and children, the fact it is the universal household remedy for infantile ailments."

W.H.C. SUPER-DURABLE FLAT PAINT

FLAT WALL FINISH

A perfect Paint of smooth surface for Interior Wall Coating

The surface obtainable with this paint is smooth and flat, i.e., it is not a grainy, dead, lifeless finish, but of a velvety texture. It dries in a reasonably quick time, so that work can be carried out effectively, yet has the property of remaining open long enough to enable the worker to cover a large surface of wall without making laps or edges.

Excellent results with Super Durable Flat Finish are easily obtained, irrespective of the skill of the user, and an elaborate preparation of the surface is usually quite unnecessary.

Super Durable Flat Finish has been tried on non-absorbent surfaces of all kinds and where distemper and oil paint have proved prone to shell or flake off, it has always adhered. It gives a lasting finish of surprising beauty.

Football League Opens Today With Twelve Teams Playing; Two Are On Byes

Police Are Picked To Beat The Football Club; The Recs-Xavier's Match Is A "Wait And See" Proposition; Many Other Games; S.V.C. Organise For Sunday Games

BY "WHISTLE"

The opening of the football league today will prove of great interest to the fans. The two first league matches should provide sufficient attraction for considerable crowds to turn up at the Race Course.

The Police should win in their game with the Football Club. It always takes the latter some little time to settle down and unless they have acquired some real new talent in the place of Forshaw and Robertson, they are booked for a rough passage. The Police were a good side last year, and with young blood in the forward line, they will probably be an even better combination this season.

The other fixture, between the Recs and St. Xavier's is a "wait and see" proposition, as no information about St. Xavier's has reached me. I saw the Recs perform last Saturday, and though they put up a fine show in the second half, I doubt if the side they had then will be their regular league team.

The Intercollegiate series should provide some good games. Fuhtan University have a strong side ready, and St. John's made the Police go all the way on Wednesday for their 3-2 victory. These two with Nanyang will develop the Chinese College football still further.

Will any Shanghai sportsman present a trophy to be played for by the winning team in the first league and the winner in the Intercollegiate series? This would add another cup tie, which would possibly be the most interesting of the lot.

S.V.C. FOOTBALL

Eight teams from the various companies of the Shanghai Volunteers corps entered association football elevens in an inter-company league for Sunday play at a preliminary meeting held Thursday.

The Field Artillery Battery, the Machine Gun Co., "A" company, Scottish, Customs, Chinese, Portuguese and a consolidated team from the American and "B" companies were the definite entrants.

The play will be on the elimination or knockout principle, commencing Dec. 4. The second round will be reached on Jan. 15, and the final on Jan. 22.

The draw follows:

Customs Co. vs. "A" Co., to play on December 4; M. G. C. vs. Portuguese Co., December 11; Shanghai Scottish vs. Chinese Co., December 18; Field Artillery Battery vs. "B" Co. and American Co., January 8.

In the second round, the winners of the first two matches will meet on January 15, and the winners of the second two matches on Jan. 22.

The final will be played on February 5 and on February 12 when the winners of the competition will meet the Rest.

A'mn School XI's Meet This Morning At U. S. Football

The first game of American football in Shanghai since the Shanghai-New Orleans match last winter will be played this morning when the Juniors and Seniors of the Shanghai American School meet the Freshmen and Sophamores at Hongkew park. The game is called for 10:30 a.m.

The match should furnish some good football interest, for both elevens have been going through stiff practice sessions for the past week under the direction and coaching of Physical Directors Van Hook and Miller, and are even up on weight.

The two teams plan to play again Thursday.

YANK GRIDIRON MEN PRACTICE THIS AFTERNOON

All Candidates Not Rowing At Henli Called To Drill On Polo Field

A call has been sounded among American football men which is expected to result in a turn out of candidates for the two elevens this afternoon at the Polo Field bigger than any other group of pigskin chasers that has yet shown out in Shanghai. And this in spite of the fact that many of the players are engaged today at Henli and in other branches of sport and will not be available for a workout.

The practice today, which commences at 3 o'clock, on the back end of the polo grounds, behind the Association football league game will be done in street clothes. Passing, kicking and a light signal drill will be had.

Manager Griffith, who was good enough to take the football reins over after Jack Knowlan's departure for home will be on the field today and after the field work a general discussion of American football will be had. Grif has some good ideas for organising, financing, and boosting the game into a firm and solid position in Shanghai sportdom. It will be well for every gridiron man and every fan at the game to be on hand today to talk the thing over.

H. H. Arnold, of the Andersen Meyer Co., an old Purdue football man, and Coaches Van Hook and Miller of the American school football squad will be on hand to help the boys along with advice. Cy. Wilhoit, last year's captain, who is still carrying on will conduct the drill.

Neprude, Doughty Tinkham, Edwards, Stovall and a few others are engaged this week-end at Henli and elsewhere, so will not be out though they are certainties for the intensive practice to commence at the first of the week. The following men have signified their intention of playing the game this fall, and if not, otherwise detained are called upon to come out to the Polo Field today at 3 p.m.

Dick Hutchinson, H. D. Rodger, Mal Maloney, Cy Wilhoit, Bill Harris, Dunn, Irle, Andersen, Neprud, Tinkham, Kulp, Stovall, Jack Smith, S. F. Smith, Glauque (available only for New Year's games), Dorrance, H. F. and S. B Hewitt, Neal, Merrill, Pruitt, Marsden, Boone, Van Hook, Miller Corcoran Doughty, Wythe, Edwards, De Schriber, and Posner.

ST. LEGER TODAY AT KIANGWAN IS CLASSIC OF CARD

Big Crowd Expected To Attend Running Of The Big Race

Preceding the big fall race meeting, the outstanding racing event is the St. Leger which will be run as the fourth race of today's card of eight events at Kiangwan.

It may be said that chances for this race are altogether open. Mr. K. K. Chang's Salvation, winner of last year's Kiangwan champions has been picked as the favorite. Mr. C. R. Burkill will ride the pony today.

Mr. T. T. Chow's Every Time, late Castle Sycee which will be ridden by Mr. D. S. Li and Messrs. Wong and Yih's Southdown, piloted by Mr. William Hill also are quoted as likely contenders in today's big event.

In recent meetings a remarkable showing has been made by Messrs. Lieu Bros.' Association, which was introduced as a griffin last spring under the ownership of the late Mr. W. S. Jackson. The pony, which will be ridden today by Mr. F. R. Vida must be reckoned as a contender. The outcome of the race however is wholly in doubt.

Among the ponies that should be figured for places on form, beside those named are Sir Ellis Kadoorie's Repulse Bay Chief, ridden by Knoll; Mr. Henry Morris' Lichfield, ridden by Stewart; Mr. McBain's Golden Knob, ridden by Moller; Mr. Dallas' Goodland, late Good Money ridden by A. N. Dallas, and Mr. Buchan's Sir John, ridden by Mr. Bauld.

For the trial handicap steeplechase, the fifth race of today's card, Leaf's Keyso ridden by Mr. M. O. Springfield, is picked as the winner. Mr. Dalgarno's Djemnah ridden by the owner, and Mr. Risk's Liability ridden by Boyd also are likely contenders in the event.

The first saddling bell this afternoon is set for 1:30 o'clock. Special trains will leave Shanghai at 11:50 a.m., 12:40 p.m. and at 1:15 p.m. Motor cars will be available at the garages every minute after noon. Tiffin and refreshments will be available at the track.

Autumn Regatta At Henli Opens This Afternoon; Is Commanding Big Interest

Hong Fours Event Will Have Center Of Fans Enthusiasm; Asiatic Petroleum Crew Looks To Be Winner, Though Race Is Open; Good Card Arranged

The Autumn Regatta of the Shanghai Rowing Club will open this afternoon at Henli with the rowing of the Tub Sculls first heat at 3 o'clock. The two days of water sports should see the best Autumn meet that has yet been held in Shanghai.

Today's events, with only the afternoon devoted to racing, will have five items on the program as compared to eleven for the full day tomorrow.

Perhaps chief interest today will center upon the Hong Fours event, which is second on the card, scheduled for 3:30 o'clock. The race will be between crews representing the Asiatic Petroleum Company, the Electrical Department, S. M. C., and the Customs. It is conceded by every fan to be a nip and tuck affair with Wallace, Evans and Hope stroking the crews. The A. P. C. have a heavier and stronger team in their boat and are fancied, but the race is so open as to demand a big share of attention from the crowds attending the regatta.

The sculling championship, the last event on today's program is another open competition. Wallace, Ford and Campbell are being touted as winners, though Schwerzer with his Old Country

SUN'S PLANS ARE TOLD TO PEKING

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Oct. 26.—Rumors of Dr. Sun Yat-sen's preparations for his expedition against the North continue to reach Peking although it is difficult to obtain confirmation of many of them. A foreign official despatch received here yesterday speaks of an agreement said to have been concluded between Dr. Sun and General Chen Chiung-ming whereby the latter agrees to contribute toward the expenses of the campaign and receives in return a promise of the government of the two Kuang provinces. The chief terms are said to be:

1.—General Chen to raise $6,000,000 towards the project:

2.—General Chen's troops not to be employed for the time being:

3.—Supply and transport services to be furnished by Dr. Sun, while General Chen furnishes a part of the munitions required:

4.—General Chen to become Civil and Military Governor of Kwangtung and Kwangsi.

It is estimated, says this despatch, that twenty million dollars would be required to finance the contemplated expedition, and rumor has it that a large proportion of this sum is to be obtained through a loan from American sources. The American authorities in Peking, however, have received no information of such a loan and give little credence to this last statement.

That General Wu Pei-fu is turning his intention to the activities of Canton and preparing to meet the threat from the South shows it materialise is indicated by a report received in an official quarter that General Wu arrived at Yochow on Monday evening and that General Hsiao Yao-nan, Tuchun of Hupeh, had sent one of his staff to confer with him there. The Inspecting Commissioner's stay in Yochow will only be for a few days as he has planned to reach Wuchang on the 30th instant. A public reception is being arranged at Wuchang, and he will afterwards come to Peking to discuss with the Government measures to be taken in view of the hostile attitude of Canton.

FREE SHIPS SAY FRENCH

Peking, Oct. 28.—The French Legation has demanded the immediate release of merchant steamers captured on the Yangtsze by General Wu Pei-fu when the vessels were flying the French flag. The Ministry of Foreign Affairs has wired the protest to General Wu.

WU URGES PEACE

Hankow, Oct. 28.—General Wu Pei-fu, on the eve of his departure from Ichang, sent a circular telegram to the press asking their support for his efforts toward peace and urging the authorities of Human and Szechuen to make some sort of a compromise with him whereby hostilities may be concluded.

STEAMERS BLACKLISTED

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Ichang, Oct. 27.—General Wu Pei-fu left for Wuchang today.

The steamers Loongmow and Robert Dollar have returned from Chungking and reported that British and American steamers are being boycotted and blackmailed there.

Henli Regatta Will Open Today

experience must be counted on as a strong competitor. The race will see a keen contest.

Doughty and Rhembourg are out to win the Griffin pairs and, because of their fine condition from extensive and conscientious training, are in fact an outstanding couple.

The Junior fours has a large following, and though Hope's crew is fancied, Johnson's boat, by reason of his win last spring of the Griffin fours and the development his men have made this fall, will be in the rowing until the line is crossed.

The trains for Henli leave Shanghai North today at 12:25 p.m. and at 1:05. Returning the specials leave Henli at 6:05 and at 7:54 p.m. Round trip fare is $3, with a $2 charge for berths. Sleeping and dining cars are stationed at Henli. Meals will be served in the diner on the railway siding at nominal cost, and tea and refreshments may be had on the lawn.

Nursing Home Not Club Is Memorial Form In Hongkong

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Hongkong, Oct. 28.—The subscribers to the War Memorial here have decided to erect a Nursing Home instead of an Army, Navy and Civilian Club.

The Governor favors the idea of a Nursing Home, and has undertaken to recommend that the Legislative Council should sanction a contribution of a dollar to every dollar of the money subscribed by the public.

HARVARD PLAYS CENTER COLLEGE, YALE VS. BROWN

American Colleges Play Important Football Games Tomorrow

American college football teams from the Pacific to the Atlantic go into action today in some of their most important games. With a number of upsets, in which the "dope" went all wrong, today's pigskin battles will have a tendency to remove shadows on the strength of some of the bigger teams and clarify the championship fights in the East, Middle West and West.

In the East all eyes are on the Center-Harvard game. Last year the collegians from the backwoods of Kentucky were touted as sure winners but the Crimson eleven walked off with the game, 28-0. Today's battle is preceded with the same suspense because Harvard was able to get only a 16 to 0 win over Middlebury, a third rate team, and in last weeks game Pennsylvania held them to a 21-21 tie.

Other big games scheduled for today are:

Wisconsin vs. Minnesota
California vs. Washington
Yale vs. Brown
Virginia vs. Princeton
Pittsburg vs. Penn
Penn State vs. Georgia Tech
Cornell vs. Ithica
Wash. and Jeff. vs. Syracuse
Susquehanna vs. West Point
Bethany vs. Annapolis
Indiana vs. Notre Dame

The South has come forward with some A-1 elevens within the past few years and this year Center, Georgia Tech and Texas must all be considered as comparable with leading elevent in other sections of the country.

Early games in the South have resulted as follows:

Georgia Tech 42, Wake Forest 0.

University of Virginia 28, Davidson 0.

Auburn 48, Sidney-Lanier 0.

Virginia P. I. 14, Hampden-Sidney 0.

University of Tennessee 27, Emory and Henry 0.

Virginia Military Institute 13, Roanoke 0.

North Carolina A. and M. 20, Randolph Macon 0.

University of Alabama 34, Howard 14.

Oklahoma Aggies 53, Southwestern Normal 0.

St. Louis University 7, Cape Girardeau Normal, 0.

Harriers To Run This Afternoon

The Shanghai Harriers Club will take their first run this afternoon at 3 o'clock commencing on the grounds of the American School and running through the Kiangwan district, a distance of about three miles. An unusually large turnout of Harriers is expected.

In the club's runs this year, which will be shorter than last year's jaunts, a pacemaker will set the pace in each run so that ambitious youngsters will not try to set the road on fire in their first practice runs. Last year it was found that many young runners, wishing to give a good impression, set a fearful pace at the start which they were unable to keep up.

ORANGE CROP HIT

(Reuter's Service)

New York, Oct. 27.—The estimated damage in the storm in Florida is estimated at millions of dollars. Nearly five hundred houses were wrecked at Tampa, the damage being estimated at $2,000,000. Five persons were killed at Tampa and St. Petersburg, where there was also considerable havoc. The orange crops have been badly damaged.

WAS IT SPOOK WHO FIRED THIS HAUNTED HOUSE

After inmates of the premises at 29 Dixwell Road had been frightened out of the house by uncanny manifestations and the tenantless place was left to the undisturbed possession of the ghost that has descended upon it a wholly new development was brought about last night when a Chinese police constable discovered that the house was on fire.

The policeman probably hadn't been told that the revengeful spirit of the Singalese, K. Peter, who was hanged for murder last July, has come back to haunt the Dixwell Road dwelling, for with another constable he entered the place and put an end to a blaze that had started on a verandah in a quantity of bedding stored there. A later examination of the house by police from the Harbin Road Station brought to light no sign of the spook and it was found that only slight damage was done by the fire. It was then recalled that the report of the theft of bracelet valued at $190 from the house had been made in the past week. This disappearance is not attributed by the police to the shade which has disrupted the establishment.

The house has been occupied by Mr. J. P. Alarcoun, of Messrs David Sassoon and Company. When the electric bell system of his home without known cause recently went into action in an eccentric manner and kitchenware and furniture took on signs of unexpected activity Mr. Alarcoun remembered a threat that had been voiced by the murderer before he was hanged. Mr. Alarcoun had been the chief witness for the prosecution and after Peter had been sentenced to hang he turned and told the man who had accused him that he would kill him in three days after his own demise, or, at any rate, would come back and haunt him.

Mr. Alarcoun recalled that three days after Peter was hanged he had a remarkable escape from death when standing before a building under construction on the Bund. A paving block which dropped from the upper portion of the structure barely missed him and struck the ground at his feet.

In the past week the spookish manifestations developed in his home and his family became so filled with fear that they abandoned the house. An inquiry in connection with happenings in the house is to be made.

The office investigator called up the haunted mansion at midnight last night but found the specure in an uncommunicative mood.

OVERSHOOT GOAL IN Y.W.C.A. DRIVE; $15,750 IS TOTAL

The financial campaign conducted by the Young Women's Christian Association for the purpose of raising funds for much needed extension work during the ensuing year closed yesterday with a total of $15,750.16 secured.

This amount is $750.16 over the figure set as a goal by the organisation.

The Association Boards are especially grateful for this added amount subscribed because after appropriating to the organised centers their share of the year's current expenses for the National Work, there was a deficit of $3,000. This amount remains to be raised by special effort and from personal subscriptions. It was with the deficit in mind that the teams worked with augmented determination the last few days of the campaign.

The team leaders and their helpers have done a valuable piece of work for the Y.W.C.A. and for Chinese women in securing money gifts, and also in assisting to acquaint more people, both Chinese and foreign, with the work the Association is doing.

Mrs. C. W. Atkinson and Miss T. T. Woo are the leaders of the two teams which raised the largest amount of money. The team leaders and amount raised by each are as follows: Miss T. T. Woo, $2,515; Mrs. Atkinson, $1,892; Mrs. Welch, $1,750.80; Mrs. McLachlin, $540.50; Business Women's Club, $1,049.50; Mrs. Lacy, $1,240.01; Madame Yieh, and the team of Madame Wu Ting-fang, $1,064.80; Madame Nvien, $551; Mrs. Y. C. Tong, $769; Mrs. Y. M. Chien, $693; Dr. Phobbe Stone, $1,457; Mrs. Li Ming, $808; Mrs. Z. Y. Yang, $900.05; Miss Me Liang-soong, $673.80.

Community Church Hallow E'en Party At Navy 'Y' Monday

The social committee of the Community Church has planned for the holding of an elaborate Hallow E'en Party on Monday evening, at eight thirty o'clock. In looking around for a hall the committee was offered the Navy Y.M.C.A., 6 Avenue Edward VII where they will give their entertainment.

Many novel features will be introduced and the decorations are to be wholly in keeping with this favorite stunt night. All Americans, their friends and particularly all newcomers to Shanghai are invited to attend. Those in charge of the arrangements are most anxious that an opportunity be given to become acquainted. Coming in costumes or masked is optional.

NO HEAD FOR CHINA

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, Oct. 25.—China's delegation to the Conference at Washington will have no chief delegate, it is officially stated.

This means that Dr. W. W. Yen, if he goes to the Conference, will represent his country as an ordinary delegate and not as chief delegate. On the other hand Dr. Yen, in his capacity of Minister for Foreign Affairs, will, if he goes, be the ranking member of the Chinese delegation and is, therefore, likely to be regarded as its responsible head.

Decision against appointing a chief delegate to the Pacific Conference was made, it is understood, for the purpose of ensuring the smooth functioning of the delegation, as none of China's appointed delegates stands out against the others from the viewpoints of seniority and experience. It is also felt that the delegation can work together quite well without a chief delegate.

Dr. Yen's departure for America will, it is officially announced, depend on whether the Government thinks he is needed more in Washington or in Peking. Passage has been engaged for him on a steamer sailing from Shanghai this coming Saturday, and he will take this vessel if the Government thinks it advisable to let him go.

Inasmuch, however, as the latest Japanese memorandum on Shantung has opened up new aspects of the case, and as there are, furthermore, outstanding questions to be settled with the Far Eastern Republic, Soviet Russia and Portugal, it is not thought probable that Mr. Yen will sail on the 30th or, in fact, at all.

It is known in this connection that the Premier is reluctant to have Dr. Yen leave China at this time as he has no desire to face the international problems confronting the country without the Foreign Minister's assistance.

Mystery Shrouds Slaying Of Woman

An aged Chinese woman was murdered Thursday night or early yesterday morning in her home in the Zia Ka Ka village near the Settlement Boundary at the end of Thorburn Road. The woman, who was 68 years old and lived alone save for a grand-daughter who works all night in a mill—was found in her bed with a cord about her throat. A box had been broken open and articles of clothing and jewelry said to be of about $300 value were missing.

A mysterious element in the case is the fact that the door was firmly barred when a daughter-in-law came to the house at 6 o'clock yesterday morning. There was a hole in the wall, but the bricks which had been removed were inside the house and there were other indications that the wall had been broken through from the inside.

The Municipal police were not informed of the crime until the woman's body had been prepared for burial and were hence badly handicapped in the matter of clews.

"A Romance of Happy Valley"

A PAGE FROM THE BOOK OF LIFE

¶ D. W. Griffith has painted his characters as if in soft pastels. The sweet, trusting nature of the girl—Lillian Gish—he has showed in delicate shades of iridescent pink. The boundless ambition of the boy—Robert Harron—he has touched with fiery red.

¶ The boy's insatiable desire to "make good," to be a "real man" in HER eyes prompts him to leave home, promising to come back on the 365th day (Just like a kid, isn't it!) All that remained to remind her of him was an old weather-beaten coat he had put on her scare-crow pole.

¶ The year comes and goes. Another year. And another and another until eight have passed. Then comes the typical Griffith climax. No! You DON'T know what it is! You can't even guess, because D. W. Griffith always gives you something unexpected.

¶ He gave it to you in "The Birth of a Nation," "Intolerance," Hearts of the World," "The Great Love" and "The Greatest Thing In Life."

¶ Now, come to see the unexpected in "A Romance of Happy Valley."

Doctor Hodgkin Gives Final Lecture Of Series

Speaker Outlines Methods To Be Followed In Applying Principles Of Christianity

The final lecture of the series on the general subject of "The Salvaging of Civilisation" was given yesterday afternoon at the Lyceum Theater by Dr. H. T. Hodgkin. The subject of the address was "Where to Begin." Mr. P. Peebles presided as Chairman.

In opening his address Doctor Hodgkin referred to a question that had been presented in written form concerning a second coming of the Savior in which the question was raised whether His principles could be fully achieved in the world before this second coming. Admitting that he was unable to answer everything raised by this question he gave it as his belief that every effort must be used to put into practice the great underlying principles of Christianity.

Taking up the general theme of his lecture series, "The Salvaging of Civilisation" he said the question was of such magnitude as to present difficulties that must seem almost insurmountable. Throughout the world and right here in Shanghai, the speaker said, many things were being done according to methods contrary to the principles of Christianity. He asserted that the campaign that should be waged should not be defensive, but offensive and he added there could be no safety in delaying action.

EDUCATION ESSENTIAL

To bring about a civilisation higher and better than this in which we live he held as a first essential the problem of education, for he said the hope of the future rested with the children. He contrasted underlying principles of education as provided today, and he said that we were so careful in carrying on training of the child to fill a particular niche that we were in danger of forgetting to deal with the child as the person with the future in his hands.

He pointed out that the great possessions of childhood should not be overlooked—those of creativeness and of trustfulness. While not undervaluing the element of competition that enters so much into school life as a thing to fit the child for later life he asked if the competitive idea is not after all a lower standard than the idea of co-operation.

ON PATRIOTISM

He spoke at length of the instilling of the love of country into the child, but he said that dislike of other countries—race prejudice or race hatred—were things to be avoided, and suggested that in pointing out the relations of other countries to the child mind the idea of one large family of nations should be given. If in the education of the child the romance of imagination is taken out, he said, we deprive ourselves of a thing needed to make the world better.

The great part to be played by the Church in applying the principles of Christianity to modern life formed a large portion of the discourse and the speaker dealt at length with needs and methods to be followed.

Doctor Hodgkin will lecture tomorrow for the Sunday Service League at Martyrs' Memorial Hall, 120 Szechuen Road when special music will be provided. A ladies' trio that will take part will be composed of Mrs. T. Y. Chang, Miss Faith Chang and Miss E-ling Tong. A mixed double quartette that will sing at the service will be composed of Dr. S. K. Toong, Mrs. R. V. E. Sun, Miss E-ling Tong, Mrs. T. Y. Chang, Miss Faith Chang, Mr. T. L. Woo, Mr. Z. H. Tong, Mr. C. G. Hoh and Dr. C. L. Ling.

WINDS MAY DELAY BIG POLAR FLIGHT

Weather Conditions Lead Naulty To Change Probable Date

Washington, Sept. 11.—Fairfax Naulty, who recently announced his intention to make an airplane flight to the north pole and across the polar area to Norway, declared tonight that the sudden change in continental weather, extending from Trinidad to Northern Canada and from the California coast east to the Mississippi, has not changed his plans for the North Pole trans - Arctic flight this Autumn, further than to advance the last probable day for the hop-off from Point Barrow, Alaska, from the end of September to the end of October.

"In Pittsburgh last Friday," said Mr. Naulty tonight, on his return to Washington from that city, where he had been perfecting plans for the expedition, "I got, through Delegate Dan Sutherland of Alaska, a relayed radio from the captain of the United States Revenue Cutter Bear, giving the weather conditions east of Point Barrow in the Arctic Ocean and in Beaufort Sea. The Bear has just made Nome from a cruise as far as Demarkation Point, at the edge of Beaufort Sea, the farthest north and east that even that intrepid vessel ever made, and this report shows that all the heavy ice in the Arctic is off shore, that there is not much of it, that the weather has been unusually warm and best of all, that there was neither rain nor fog in August in the Arctic Ocean.

"If the expected condition of weather comes in October we shall be able to make the flight from Point Barrow across the North Pole to North Cape, Norway, and have ample time for observations to insure that we have reached the pole in a week from the time we take the air for the flight.

"I have been conducting experiments with catalytic radio transmission in Pittsburgh and feel that we can now be sure of a sending range of 2,700 miles by radio under fair conditions. We have cut our weight of the set so it weighs less than a member of the crew. With a dual set we shall be in hourly radio communication with the world. If we get into trouble, relief can and will be dispatched at once, and the rescue party will know just where we are as we shall give our position every hour. We can easily reach Nome radio station and may even be able to make the high power at Annapolis in night sending.

"At the North Pole we shall radio our observations and ask for any corrections from the Naval Observatory or Harvard University, and if we are in error that error can be corrected while we are at the pole. Our method will relieve our reports of any doubt as to accuracy.

"If all goes well we hope to start the polar flight from Washington, using a land chassis as far as Seattle. There we shall change the underbody to the special underbody I have devised for the arctic by means of which we can make a landing on ice or water. From Seattle we shall fly up the Alaskan coast to Anchorage, and from there cut across to Nome and on to Point Barrow.

"From Barrow the actual polar flight will start. We shall fly due north, and If we can make the North Pole in a single flight will do do. From the pole we will fly to Spitzenberg, from there to North Cape and on to the head of the Gulf of Bothnia, where we again cross the Arctic Circle, which we cut just north of Nome. We shall fly down the Bothnian Gulf to the Baltic and to Stockholm, thence to Christiania, Copenhagen, Amsterdam, Brussels, Paris and London. We expect to reach London on Nov. 15.

"North to Point Barrow and south from North Cape we shall not have much difficulty about fuel. We shall carry fifty flight hours' fuel for the polar flight and expect to go through on it. The rest of the way, even at Iceland and Cape Farewell, it will be easy to ship in a supply ahead of time."

The Week's Market Report

In their weekly report on the Shanghai Trade, Messrs. Noel, Murray and Company write as follows:

Cotton.—Whilst New York was up yesterday, the latest report from Liverpool gave lower rates ruling on the 24th instant 12.61d. for Spot, 11.98d. for January, and 11.76d. for March. Bengals are cheaper at 8.90d. and Egyptians 4d. lower at 22.50d. The New York quotations yesterday were 19.20 cents for Spot, 18.78 for December, 18.40 for March and 17.97 cents for May. Up to the 17th instant 5,477,000 bales of cotton had been ginned in America (counting 2 round bales as 1 bale) against 5,762,000 bales last year. In Bombay fears of panic are entertained as the market there has broken from Rs. 626 for Broach to Rs. 509 and prices are expected to go lower still.

Home Market.—There has been a dearth of news from Manchester this week, but it is generally believed the makers are in want of work and would be tempted with reasonable offers were such forthcoming from this end; the situation here, however, is not sufficiently settled to warrant a buying campaign, so there is little doing in the nature of fresh business.

Local Market.—The tight money market continues to dominate the trade indeed, if anything, to a greater degree than it did last week. Native interest is still nominally 7 mace per thousand taels per day, but there is a Bank charge of 6 percent or so in addition, which makes the borrowing rate about 32 percent per annum and needless to say there are few conceivable transactions that can be made to shew a profit, when such a burden has to be hung on to them. In consequence trade is more or less at a standstill, but the silver hoard continues to shrink and of Sycee there is at present under 200 lakhs of tael's in the banks. Shipments are due, but they disappear immediately on arrival, and it has been suggested that minting operations should be suspended for some days to ease the situation; as the Dollar exchange is very low this easing up may follow in natural course. A little demand from Newchwang is being filled, probably the last effort before the closing of the port. The up river situation does not look so well this week, as although all the boats that started for Chungking reached their destination safely and two have returned to Ichang, the Loong Mow has been held up by the Chinese and not permitted to land her cargo; this may bring communications to a standstill once more. We notice the arrival of bulky shipments of American Sheetings, and have to report that deliveries generally have fallen off during the past week.

A. B. ROSENFELD & SON

China Cotton.—Although there has been rather erratic fluctuation during the week, the net change in price has been insignificant, the market has generally had a steady appearance, but while there has been local buying on declines, outside interest has been insufficient to carry advances far.

Arrivals in the meantime are increasing daily and caution is advised in trading by buying sparingly, as a material advance is unwarranted at the present time.

Yarn.—The market during the past week was keeping steady to firm. New business for export has been recorded, some 7,000 to 8,000 bales in all of 20's and 16's at an advance of one to two taels compared with last week. From present indications a steady market is looked forward to for the near future.

SPUNT AND COMPANY

In their cotton market report of today, Messrs. J. Spunt and Company write as follows:

China Cotton:—Our market during the week just ended displayed hardly any activity in that while offerings of the local staple were plentiful and at reasonable rates, consumers appeared not to be in a position to absorb part or all of such offerings by reason of being well stocked for the time being, and also by reason of the native spinners in general being loath to take in further supplies at the expense of paying the current exorbitant rate of interest on overdrafts that such purchases would incur, and it is also due to the continued monetarial stringency that the speculative element has been deterred from exercising its usual tactics to any great extent at a time when the situation is so advantageous for their operations. These conditions have naturally evolved a weakish tendency at the close; but the general sentiment in the trade is that prices will not appreciably recede as the shortage of this season's crop will sooner or later become more accentuated, and from the present outlook there are no signs of such discrepancy being replaced by Mid-Americans and/or Indians at rates on a parity with those now ruling locally. Tone of the market, Easy.

Exchange Fluctuations

Asia Banking Corporation

Shanghai, October 28, 1921

Spot bar silver was up 3/8 and forward 1/4 in London yesterday.

The New York price advanced to 69¾ cents and the London-New York cross rate declined to 293⅛. The official rates here were unchanged from yesterday.

The market was firm throughout the day, particularly for near delivery, as high as 4/1 being done for October in Sterling and 80 for Gold Dollars.

There were good sellers of December Sterling in the afternoon at 3/10¾ and of Gold Dollars at 76¾. China bought a small amount of silver in London yesterday, and the market there is reported as being steady.

The New York market is now reported as being steadier although silver is still being freely offered there. However, regardless of the price of silver during the next day or two, our local market will likely remain firm over the end of the month, due to our very tight money markets.

In the jute fabrics circular of October 26, Mr. J. A. Fredericks states as follows:

Business in this line of imports has reverted to the stagnant condition it has been suffering from for months past with the exception of a couple of weeks a short while back. Heavy C's 2¼ lbs. bluestripe are nominally Tls. 175.00 while 2½ lbs. greenstripe continue neglected. On The Eve Of The Disarmament Conference

BY FRANCESCO NITTI

(Former Premier of Italy and One of the World's Foremost Authorities on the Political Problems of Europe.)

THE world war ended nearly three years ago: on June 28, exactly two years had elapsed since the signing of the Versailles Peace Treaty. During these three years the situation of Europe has changed considerably for the worse; the "policy of peace" has developed into what can only be described as a series of war-like maneuvers. Increasing poverty and misery, a growing spirit of violence, alarming symptoms of disintegration are everywhere noticable in Europe.

During the war, when it was the fashion to raise the Entente to the skies as the champion of the great principles of democracy and liberty, people continually asserted:

First—That this was to be the last great war.

Second—That the Society of Nations was laying the basis of lasting peace and good will among peoples.

Third—That secret diplomacy and secret treaties were to be abolished.

Fourth—That all international barriers and hindrances to free commerce among nations were to be removed.

Fifth—That it was necessary immediately to reduce all military expenses and subsequently standing armies. Many other admirable ideas were set forth in the official documents, and ex-President Wilson's famous "fourteen points" contain sentiments and aspirations which now give one the impression of visions or dreams, certainly all things long surpassed and utterly submerged by the grim reality of facts.

PEACE WITHOUT PROGRESS

But peace has been concluded in so odious a manner, violence and diffidence have so manifestly prevailed in all dealings, that not only has it been impossible to attain the progress which it was hoped to reach, but hatred has flamed forth, quarrels are increasing and there is diffidence everywhere.

The peace treaties have been nothing but another manner of continuing the war, and Europe is in the throes of that horrible clash of spirits which severs peoples more and more, hurling them against each other. Between what peoples can it now be said that cordiality exists? Not even among those nations which the war united in suffering and in danger is there any longer confidence of cordial friendship.

Every nation is intent on healing its wounds, and there is diffidence in all.

When the gospel of violence has been openly proclaimed in the treaties, who can have faith in justice?

Nothing has remained of all the things that had been affirmed. How can one believe, therefore, that the last war has been fought?

We do say "the last war" in the historic sense; only the illusions of democracy can transform the wish in reality. It was possible to hope, however, that at least for some time to come Europe would not be again drenched in blood.

But as a matter of fact Greece and Turkey are actually at war with each other. Poland, carried away by a crisis of megalomania and following harmful suggestions, is preparing for new wars. Hungary and Bulgaria, as a result of unjust peace, are awaiting war as the only means of liberation. Germany is in a moral state of hatred not far removed from war.

"HOLY ALLIANCE" SPLIT

The Society of Nations, in spite of Balfour's fine words, is rather a ridiculous affair. The United States of America did very well in refusing to belong to it, and the Argentine Republic was even better advised in leaving it after having entered it.

Beyond distributing a large number of fat salaries to persons who have nothing to do, it is difficult to understand the uses of the Society of Nations which has lost every moral prestige owing to the fact that the vanquished peoples do not form part of it, so that it is nothing but a Holy Alliance of the victors. But as the victors are now at loggerheads among themselves, the Holy Alliance also has become meaningless.

Not only has secret diplomacy failed to disappear, but it has redoubled in activity and new secret treaties are being prepared every day. What has happened in Poland? What treaty now regulates the military foreign action of the Polish Republic? In all the little states which have emerged from the war there is an effervescence of intrigues and the cropping up of new aspirations which find—or will find—their sanction in the treaties.

As to removing the barriers which hinder commerce between nations, nothing could be more deplorable than what has actually happened. The storing up of raw materials has been followed by a protectionist explosion: each of the principal states tries to dominate the situation and to place its rivals in the impossibility of competing with it.

It is no longer a case of commercial competition but organised exploitation. The principal cause of this is to be found in the peace treaties, but it also derives from the psychological state of the masses.

EXPANDING ARMIES

Is it then to be wondered at if, in consequence of this, standing armies, far from being reduced, actually tend to increase? It is the new states which have emerged from the war or which have been favored by the war which are especially noticeable for increasing their armaments. Czecho-Slovakia, Jugo-Slavia, Rumania, Greece, and above all, Poland, whose immoderate ambition and disorder constitute the gravest menace to peace, now possess larger armies than those of the principal states of Europe before the war.

Taken altogether, military expenditure is now greater than before the war, and Germany is obliged to maintain, on behalf of the victors, an army of occupation which costs more than a large standing army.

For the States of the Entente, aided by America and, what is more upheld by the prestige of fighting in the name of right and justice, it has been easier to win the war than to achieve peace.

The war spirit is still in the souls of the masses, and foreign policy is usually nothing but the expression of the internal situation of the various States of Europe. Peace at home will be first deserved by those who achieve it abroad.

At present there is no peace, but only the prevailing of those principles of violence which were declared to be the prerogative of the Germans and their allies, while now they are, even in a more marked degree, the characteristic of the victors.

Who has won in this immense war? Perhaps no one. But the real victor will be only he who will be the first to proclaim the real gospel of peace to his own people and then to the other nations.

At present the balance of peace in Europe is nothing but a collection of bad debts. We have not yet reached bankruptcy, but we are dangerously near it.

If debtors and creditors want to save themselves there is only one way open to them, namely, to enter on a friendly understanding, in the common interest, to save what it is still possible to rescue from complete ruin.

AN APPEAL TO CLUBWOMEN

Editor: THE CHINA PRESS

One needs not live in China many years to know that one of the greatest curses of this country is gambling. We have read much of the recent alarming growth in the number of "Exchanges" opened in Shanghai, and have been told that they are merely another outlet for the passion for gambling. Go along any back street of an evening and count the houses in which groups of men or women are feverishly gathered about a table within, gambling, and you have an indication of its prevalence among the poorer sort.

One of the greatest problems the house-keeper has to confront is how to keep her servants from squandering their pay and then drawing on her house-keeping allowance in their pursuit of this evil, fascinating sport. Were it possible to chart the motives which lead to most of the petty stealing that continually goes on by house boys and other servants, as well as by men in other pursuits, I have little doubt that the greatest incentive would be found in the need for money to pay gambling debts.

Remains to be considered: What are we doing to fight this evil in our midst? In any community there will always be some who refuse to bear any responsibility for their neighbors' welfare. A chain is no stronger than its weakest link. But are we, as a community, to be no stronger, no more Christian, than the weakest or most selfish links among us? The club women of the Philippines, 9,000 strong, are making a tremendous campaign against all forms of gambling in the Islands, and are sending a petition to Governor General Wood, to aid in this work. Must the club women of Shanghai be behind them?

The game that is more popular than any other form of gambling in China, one that has lost more fortunes and buried more happiness than any other, is that commonly known as "Sparrow," or "Mah-jongg".

Yours very truly,
"ALARMED"

Great Fortunes As A Benefit To All

An Economist's Argument For Wealth Accumulated Lawfully And Controlled By The Creators—Workingmen's Prosperity A Result Of Increase In Industries

By HARRY HUBBARD

(The author of this article was formerly a lawyer of New York city. He has written frequently on economics as well as the law.)

Every little while some one who ought to know better attacks great fortunes as an evil, while not a few seemingly reputable men have advocated legislation, such as heavy inheritance and income taxes, with the avowed object, not of raising revenue, but of diminishing great fortunes.

We lose sight of great facts because of their continued existence. They were here when we were born. Prior to the great war wealth was so abundant that many people regarded it as they did air or water, and forgot that wealth is the result of work, sacrifice and saving. The war destroyed much wealth that men now feel its loss, as never before in our time. That is the explanation of bad times for workmen today and for the high cost of living. Good times will not return until the world has worked, sacrificed and saved and accumulated wealth again.

In civilised countries men save—that is, set aside out of their income—wealth, not to be spent for their own personal needs or pleasures, but devoted to producing other and additional wealth. Thus, for example, a farmer out of his crops saves a portion for next year's farm operations, a manufacturer saves enough to build a factory and operate it, and several men, united as a corporation, save enough to build and operate a railroad. One of the chief things that distinguishes civilisation as we have it, with all its modern comforts and happiness, from savagery, with its want and misery, is the capacity to save and invest. We are benefited by the accumulated savings and investments of preceding years, yet most wealth (except land, minerals and other natural objects) would perish very soon if it were not continually replaced. For example, our railroads in the United States have been practically all made over—roadbeds, rails, bridges, stations, locomotives and cars—within a generation. It is so in nearly all other industries.

In our complex modern life, saving and investing take place in many ways. For example, money saved and deposited in a savings bank finds its way out in a loan on mortgage to help build a house, a factory or a store, or it pays for bonds, and the proceeds are put into a railroad or some public work, as a schoolhouse, dock, street, etc. In any and all these cases the money deposited in the savinge bank goes ultimately to employ labor and pay wages. So money deposited in any other bank or trust company is loaned out to merchants, manufacturers, and others, and similarly goes to pay wages.

SAVINGS GO TO PAY LABOR

The same is true of money saved and invested in regular course of business in stocks or bonds. Corporations engaged in great business, as railroads, issue and sell their stock and bonds in order to obtain money to carry on their work. All this money goes to employ labor and pay wages, or, if materials are bought, the money goes to pay for them and the labor engaged in producing them—in the end substantially all to labor.

So it is not possible to conceive of money saved and invested in regular course not going, substantially all of it, to the employment of labor and the payment of wages.

No rich man in our day hoards his money. All his income (except what he spends for personal needs and pleasures and what he gives to others for similar purposes) goes into investments in some form, and ultimately all goes to employ labor and pay wages.

It is one of the natural economic laws, as beneficent and as immutable as the law of gravitation, that rich men who invest their money in order to grow richer are really trustees of their wealth for the benefit of labor, whether they so regard themselves or not. The only way a rich man (or any man for that matter) can repudiate such trusteeship is by wasting his wealth by using it in riotous living for himself or for others. He cannot possibly avoid such trusteeship for the benefit of labor, so long as he saves his money and invests it. He has the legal title, but the money must be paid out for labor. The danger to society is not when the rich man desires to save and invest his money and become richer, but when he ceases to have such desire, and begins to use his money for foolish personal pleasures for himself or for others. The probability that a man who has spent his life in building up a fortune will turn about and do such a thing is very remote.

RICHES SUBJECT TO THE LAW

This economic law does not depend for its action on the moral character of the capitalist or good-will toward workmen. The meanest-spirited accumulator of wealth (if such a man could conceive great enterprises and carry them through), equally with the most benevolent, is subject to the law. It is a safe and sufficient protection against the imagined dangers of the accumulation of great wealth. Men clamor "danger," "danger," yet these dangers, so much paraded as the capital stock of agitators and feared even by some good people, have never been realised and never will be, for this beneficient law prevents any such thing. The poorest may look with equanimity, or, rather, with gladness, because of his own personal and selfish interest, upon the increase of the wealth of the richest. No rich man growing richer need feel that he is taking from others, but rather he should rejoice that, as he grows richer, he is necessarily enriching others.

The possessor of wealth (rich or poor) has the legal title to it; and he gets his living—that is, his food, clothing and shelter—and such other necessaries or luxuries as he can use. He gets nothing more. And all these he leaves in a few short years after he has acquired them. He spends hard days and sleepless nights, perhaps. Many a poor man has what are to him far more pleasures and better health. Every man to his taste. What is happiness? Is wealth? Do the communists and Socialists really think so? If they do, then why not struggle for it like brave men instead of whining like cowards? And, if they do not think so, why do they find fault with men of different tastes who do struggle and obtain wealth? The Communists and Socialists seem to make a lot of fuss over a thing which they think nobody (themselves included) ought to wish for.

People talk about the "danger" of great wealth. It seems to be always "danger," "danger," but no specification of any definite thing. The danger from great wealth is purely imaginary. The real danger is that men may not save their money so as to have great wealth, and thus have a great fund for investment and wages. Natural economic laws govern the accumulation and distribution of wealth, and Government may well hesitate before it tries to go contrary to these natural laws.

One may challenge the world to show how there could be any system under which more money could be made available for wages than under the existing system of private property and the saving and investing of money. All there is now goes as wages. How could more go? Only by saving and investing more. It deserves consideration whether there ought not to be an effort to save more. The expenses of all classes, rich and poor, have mounted upward continually. What were formerly luxuries are now deemed necessaries. Reliance upon pensions by private corporations or by the Government has taken the place somewhat of saving up for old age. There is a spirit of spending now and letting the future care for itself. Such a spirit ought, in the interests of workmen and of society, to be checked. So, too, for precisely the same reasons ought to be checked anything that will discourage men from saving and investing and building up big fortunes. We have seen that, when these are built up, they belong by an inexorable law to the workmen, though the legal title be in the owner. To decrease them is to decrease the fund for wages.

For the good of workmen no one ought to wish that a great captain of industry retire from business or have his fortune diminished. Workmen are interested to have him stay in the harness as long as possible and have a big fortune to invest and pay out in wages. Work is good for men. So is making wealth. To give permanent work and good wages is one of the finest achievements of our modern industrial system. To honor those who do this is wise for workmen and society. In our own country such men have been honored except by the demagogue and his followers. In England they have received titles. May the day be long distant when public opinion and public policy or any act of the Government shall discourage the saving and investing of money by either rich or poor! May the day also be far distant when we have in this country (as a result of any such discouragement of industry) a rich do-nothing and money-spending class instead of a saving and investing class engaged in magnificent and beneficent industries!

Society, and especially workmen, ought to be glad that some men take pleasure in saving and investing money and in growing rich; that they enjoy it, and therefore do it. Society ought to be glad that there are great captains of industry, men who can conceive great things and carry them to success. The world needs them. There are at least a thousand followers to one leader in the industrial world. The leaders are necessary, if big industries, big production, and consequent big wages are to be had. They are as necessary in the industrial world as a wise father or mother is in a successful household.

PROCESS OF SAVING

"Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone; but, if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit." This is as true today as when spoken. It not only applies to wheat, but it is a great truth as to modern saving and investing. The only method of increasing wealth is by saving and investing it, and this means that it must be paid out in wages and consumed, and in its place a new and increased amount of wealth is produced, and this process goes on indefinitely. A talent of money buried in the earth or hidden in a napkin never produced ten other talents or even one.

Saving means sacrifice of a present for a future gain—always has and always will. The savage is not always willing to make it; but civilised man knows how, and ought to make it. Envy of those who have made this sacrifice and succeeded in accumulating wealth is not becoming to a brave man.

If wealth is dangerous, how much is dangerous? Is a million dollars? May not a million dollars be wasted as readily as a hundred millions? How many cases have occurred in our day of great wealth misused? We already have some laws against the misuse of wealth—our guardianship laws. More laws could be enacted along that line if necessary, and thus fully protect every one without diminishing the motive to save and invest, which is so necessary for the welfare of society.

One would think, to read some things that have been written or said about the wealth of the rich, that they had their wealth in money on deposit in banks or perhaps locked up in their own safes; and that they were constantly adding to their "pile" thus locked up; and that there was danger that they would thus lock up all the wealth of the world and what would the poor do then? Most of the fear of great wealth has as senseless a foundation as that. The truth is that the wealth of the rich has been paid out, invested in business where it is fixed, and could not be taken back by the owner. He could sell it and transfer it to some one else, yes. But how could the wealth put into railroads or factories or machines be taken back by the man who has invested his money in them? The railroads, factories, etc., must continue to exist and benefit workmen and society long after the men who have created them have passed away.

DEPOSITS NOT IDLE

A small part of the wealth of the rich is deposited in banks. But this is not "idle," hoarded money, as some would have us suppose. One might think, to read or hear some statements, that the "deposits" in a bank are money on hand in the bank. Far from it; the "deposits" are what the bank owes to its depositors. It is a pity the words "due to depositors" were not always used instead of "deposits," for it would save much erroneous thinking. The bank has loaned out about 75 percent of the "deposits" of its depositors, and retained only about 25 percent in cash as a reserve to pay its deposits on demand. These loans are made to merchants, manufacturers, and other business men to carry on the business of the world, and out of this is paid money for wages and raw materials (these in turn being nearly all wages). No bank takes a rich man's money and keeps it as a hoard. That would be the business of a safe deposit company, if any one was foolish enough in these days to hoard his money in cash. No rich man does this. The ten-talent man never hides his money in a napkin. It is only a one-talent man who does this.

So, then, we find that, as a matter of fact, when the rich man adds to his "pile," he is adding to his investments in productive enterprises, no matter how much he adds, and that all of his wealth goes out ultimately in wages. A great "danger" to the country and to the poor! A "great peril"! It must be "controlled," and legislated against, etc., ad infinitum, and ad nauseam, too.

Even if money was given away freely by the wealthy, this would not increase the total receipts of the whole number of workmen; for all that is saved and invested already goes as wages, and if, instead of being saved and invested and thus paid out as wages, part of the money was given away, the workmen would not have more. If the gifts were not to the workmen, they would have less. If the gifts were made and consumed, and if there was no production by means of the gifts to replace the consumption, then the workmen and society would be worse off than if the gifts had not been made and the money had been left invested in industry, paying wages and producing wealth.

When workmen see that a big sum is to be spent in anything but industry, their attitude, in their own interest, ought to be one of inquiry. Will such sum be spent for a justifiable purpose? If the sum remains in industry, it is theirs, the workmen's though the legal title be in the investor. If the sum is taken out for a gift to a charity, the inquiry ought to be whether it is justifiable. If the Government proposes to take a sum in taxes (from the rich or poor), the workmen ought to inquire whether it is justifiable. If not, then the loss is the workmen's even though the loss of the legal title falls on the owner.

UNWISE CHARITY A WASTE

It is a wicked waste for a wealthy man (or any man) to take money from his investments (existing or proposed) and put it into an unwise charity.

It is a wicked waste for a Government to take money in taxes from its people (rich or poor) that would be saved and invested if the Government uses such money for any but necessary and useful purposes and in the most economical manner. Any and all waste by Government is a direct injury to workmen, whether the taxes wasted come from rich or poor.

If taxes are levied on the rich, it is to be presumed that such

O, Mr. Wells, O, Mr. Wells whatever shall I do?
A nice responsibility I'm saddled with by you!
I always thought that Providence equipped the child with brains,
Which "teacher" took in hand as one who merely guides and trains.

Alas, you blandly stake for me a more extensive claim—
If mental eggs are addled mine the burden and the blame.
Mine ignominious failure if the shoot declines to bud,
The scandal if I don't evolve grey matter out of mud!

At any rate I gather that you don't at all agree
With ultimate results achieved by Providence or me—
We turn out rows of little Kipps, whose outlook you deplore,
Instead of Ann Veronicas and Remingtons galore.

O, Mr. Wells, O, Mr. Wells, if you are worth your salt,
Since Providence and I are both apparently at fault,
May I suggest you down your pen and leave it on the shelf,
And come and have a go at moulding infant minds yourself.

STOOPS TO CONQUER

English people have had some hard things said about them lately on account of their bad deportment and their inability to stand up straight. Into the rights and wrongs of this I will not enter, but I may repeat a nice little story which is told by our lady M.P., Lady Astor, which has some bearing on the subject.

A pompous Scottish laird met a farmer one morning and observed:

"Well, Sandy, you're getting very bent. Why don't you stand up straight, like me?

"Eh, mon," replied Sandy, "d'ye see you field of corn?"

"I do," said the laird.

"Ah, well," said Sandy, "ye'll notice that the full heids hang down, an' that the empty yins stand up!"

Great Fortunes As A Benefit To All

taxes will be paid out of what may be called their surplus for saving and investment rather than out of that portion of their income which they have been accustomed to spend for personal needs and pleasures. If this presumption is correct, taxes levied on the rich diminish their fund for saving and investment and thus diminish wages. Taxes levied merely to take money from the rich in order to make them poorer (if in these days such taxes are conceivable) would thus diminish the funds which go for wages.

Not all gifts to so-called charity or benevolence are for the benefit of society. As work and wages are usually better than alms, so saving and investing money (though it results in a big fortune for the owner) are far better for society than foolish giving. The person who benefits society is the man who by saving and investing accumulates a fortune, and not the family who spend and give away the fortune after his death.

From what is stated above it follows that whatever increase the product of industry increase wages. The increase of product, if it goes in the first instance to the capitalist, increases his income, and out of his income he has more money for saving, and all his saving, as above explained, goes ultimately as wages. Thus all labor-saving machinery and devices are for the benefit of laborers, and so also all efficiency of labor in every form. The industrial development of the United States in the last thirty years is an instance and an irrefutable proof of this truth.

The grand successes of our own times, and especially of our own country, and of Great Britain and France, have been industrial. Through these successes the great body of the people of the country have been raised to a level of prosperity, with high wages and comfortable living, never before existing in the world.

In earlier times in Europe the leaders of the people (under the various names indicating leadership or ability, as Duke, King, etc.) built their walled towns and castles, and provided armor and fighting materials, and they and their followers spent much time in petty wars. Industry was carried on in the crudest and most wasteful manner as compared with industry in our country today. Poverty and ignorance and lives more animal than human were the rule among ordinary people. Even palaces of Kings of a few hundred years ago were far less comfortable than the homes of workingmen in our country today.

Our monuments are industrial. In the centuries past the people in Europe put vast labor and money into the erection of cathedrals and other buildings for religious purposes. We look on these with wonder. But far more wonderful and more useful are our railroads, steamships, telegraphs, telephones, wireless telegraph, our factories of a thousand kinds and their multitudes of machines and tools, the power loom and spinning machine, the cotton gin and hosts of agricultural machinery and implements, sewing machines, knitting machines, automobiles, and countless other labor-saving devices. All these were the inventions and creations of men within about one hundred years, working under the existing conditions of private ownership and control of wealth and freedom of industry, where great captains of industry received their rewards, and men who built up industries had the joys and gains and honors due to their success. All these men, however, as above stated, were really trustees for the benefit of the public, whether they knew it or willed it or not. They could not benefit themselves without benefiting their fellow-men far more. There has never before been a period when wages have been so high as during the last twenty or twenty-five years—a period in which there has been the greatest corporation development in the history of the world.

"CONTROL OF WEALTH"

We have heard much in recent years of so-called "reforms" in the control of wealth—as if somehow society at large is to be benefited by some such "reforms." There has been much talk that wealth must be "controlled" in some way by the Government or it will become "dangerous." Let us see what benefit, if any, is to be derived from any such control.

The way to have money or wealth to use in the payment of wages is by saving, as already above explained. The Government itself has no means of saving; for it earns no money (at least where the Government carries on no industry), but receives taxes taken from persons who have earned money. Will individuals save more or less money if what they save is to be "controlled," not by themselves, but by the Government? Perhaps it is not wise to say that all men are naturally selfish and lazy. But most men like to get a living with the least possible effort; and selfishness and laziness of human beings are psychological facts which cannot be ignored in any system of society. If, then, the Government is to step in and "control" what a man saves and invests, is he going to earn enough to save anything? If the Government is going to control a man's capital—that is, all that a man can save, all that he earns beyond what is needed for his support—is he going to earn anything beyond an amount sufficient for his support? Why should he? What would be his motive? To the extent that the Government undertook to "control" wealth, there would be a tendency to decrease future saving.

But suppose the Government seized existing wealth (without paying compensation) and took "control" of that what would be the effect on society? Would the Government manage that wealth better than it is now managed? The Government is made up of mortal men elected to office. With all respect, one may ask whether they have individually, or as a body, proved themselves capable of managing big financial business. Have they gained ten pounds where they started with only one, or are they five-pound men, or not even one-pound men? Election to office works no miracle in a man. Shall the "control" of wealth be taken from those who have earned it, and conferred upon those who have not? Shall we reverse the Bible narrative and take away from the man who by industry and ability has gained ten pounds and confer the "control" of those ten pounds upon the man who has gained only five, or even upon the man who has gained none? Shall we take wealth from those who have proved themselves capable of managing it and confer "control" upon those who have not? Some of the little one-talent or no-talent men seem to want to take "control" of wealth away from the big ten-talent man. It would not be good for society.

MANAGEMENT BY THE GOVT.

There is no magic by which Government is able to manage things. Officials are only individuals, and are no wiser because they are elected to office; and they are not usually elected because of any ability they have shown in managing the industries of the country. But, if they were to be elected to office because of such ability already shown, there is no reason to think they would manage business any more wisely because they were officers of the Government than they did as individuals or as officers of corporations. If the Government undertook the management of industry, then, in order that the people might not suffer loss through bad management, Government would be compelled to have as managers the same men that now manage business successfully. But it would be impossible for the Government to get such managers. The men who have been the great captains of industry have not done their work for a salary, but because they were building up a great business which was their own to manage and control, for the joy as well as the gain which was in the work and the success. Any one who thinks that Government could get such work from such men on a salary as a part of a Government machine can have little knowledge of human nature.

Several years ago we heard a cry that the "interests" should not be represented in Congress or in any legislative body. If this means that no man who has wealth is to be elected to office, then is it not time to protest against any such doctrine? Is it not wise that able men shall sit in Congress? Shall we go out into the streets and hunt up a man who has nothing, no "interest" in anything, and elect him? Shall we elect men who have never had the ability (in our time and country with all its opportunities) to acquire any "interest" in anything? Are such men likely to make wise legislators? And then, if it is proposed to give such men "control" of the wealth and industry of the country, are great and good results to be expected? Will such men be able to do better for the country than they have been able to do for themselves?

The assertion that Government "control" of wealth is desirable must be based on the idea that the people of the country as a whole would thus get more good out of the wealth. Would they? We have seen above that substantially all wealth saved and invested is paid out in wages. The more money people save and invest the greater is the amount paid out in wages. This does not depend on the benevolent disposition of the employer but upon natural economic laws. Would this fund be increased if there was Government "control"? Most certainly the contrary, for saving would be decreased if a man ceased to "control" what he saved. A direct effect of Government "control," therefore, would be a decrease of wages.
